New “Real Player Motion” looks even closer to real football when the game’s player models move from distance to distance in natural, flowing motion. At each distance, the player’s weight, stance and movement transitions from the previous distance to the next. It is the first FIFA to feature this technology. New post-match reaction animations enhance players’ post-match reactions when they receive a pass, are tackled or dispossessed in the box. And new animations highlight their reaction to a missed chance. New sprint animations and post-match action animations have been added to players’ ball controls to add to the realism and authenticity of each new post-match reaction. The Best of the Best FIFA Best XI player ratings for the past decade have been reconfigured for a world-class performance. Each club is also represented in FIFA Ultimate Team™, by the players that make each side the best of the best. New Pass Behaviour Pass Accuracy: If the player’s movement through space allows for greater control with the ball, they will now have more options on where to pass it. The distance they pass the ball will vary according to their speed and direction of travel. When controlling the ball, dribblers can now slow down or accelerate at any time. And when players chase a pass from the opposition, they will now also attempt to create space for themselves. New Tactical Defending Tactical defending has been improved, allowing clubs to set up defensive tactics that suit their playing styles. The following will be introduced: Patrolling: The team in possession of the ball will now drop back with the aim of slowing the play down. Loading the Pockets: When defending on the break, the defending team will adopt a box-to-box press instead of retreating. As the ball is worked down the pitch, the defending team will converge on the ball. Out-numbering the opponent: If the ball is dropped deep into the opponent’s half, the players have the option to aggressively press the opposition’s midfielders, and force them into deeper positions. When a team loses the ball, a player will now be more willing to pressure their opponent and force them into one-on-one situations. Rotation: If a player is one-on-one with the opponent, they now have the option to rotate to switch sides. New Defensive Actions
