Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a vehicle seat, and more particularly to a vehicle seat adapted to be selectively placed on either of the right and left hand sides of the driver or the passenger. 2. Description of the Prior Art Various types of vehicle seats are well known in the art. These include, among others, vehicle seats which are adjustable in a width direction of the body of the passenger. Vehicle seats including a seat cushion and a seat back are also well known in the art. In the case of one conventional seat of this type, a pair of right and left hand side frames are positioned at right and left hand side of the seat cushion, and a pair of front and rear pairs of right and left hand side frames are provided in the back of the seat cushion. The seat back, is also made to fit on the respective left and right hand side frames. Such conventional seat, however, cannot be assembled in both the right and left hand sides of the body. Another type of vehicle seat is also known in the art. In this type of conventional seat, all the components of the seat including the seat cushion, the seat back, and the side frames are hingedly connected at their right and left hand side edges to a respective one of front and rear pairs of side frames to be pivotable in a longitudinal direction of the vehicle. The seat cushion and the seat back are also rotated in a transverse direction of the vehicle about the respective forward and rearward pivot axes, thereby being adapted to be positioned laterally on the right or left hand side of the body of the passenger. In such conventional seat, however, the transverse rotation of the seat cushion and the seat back is effected through a rotary connecting portion. This makes the seat extremely heavy and hard to open and close. Also, the seat cushion is not firmly connected to the seat back through the rotary connecting portions and is therefore subject to a disconcerting rocking motion.(1) Field of the Invention The invention relates to the fabrication of integrated circuit devices, and more particularly, to a method of enhancing polishing rate of insulator films in the fabrication of integrated circuits. 6d1f23a050
